

TALKING BLACK IN AMERICA

Friday, February 2nd, 3-5 pm
John C. Guyon Auditorium, Morris Library
Southern Illinois University
Free and open to the public

Talking Black in America showcases the history and symbolic role of language in the lives of African Americans and highlights its tremendous impact on the speech and culture of the United States. Runtime 66 minutes

Q+A and panel discussion to follow the screening, led by executive producer Walt Wolfram (NC State University) and Professor of Political Science Randolph Burnside (Southern Illinois University).

For more information visit talkingblackinamerica.org

A special presentation of the Department of Linguistics
Southern Illinois University Carbondale
Sponsored by the GPSC

